about me

Rev. Dr. Willie F. Goodman develops stand-alone methods in Black masculinist theology of liberation, methodologically akin to womanist theology, grounded in Black pastoral counseling/care and the general disciplines of Black liberation theology. This work intentionally gives voice to the experiences of male-identifying persons of African-descent supported by specifically developed healthful initiatives for multi-layered psycho-social cultural discussions.

He is also is the Associate Professor of Pastoral Care and Counseling at the Interdenominational Theological Center. He developed courses delving into the intersectional effects of sexuality + spirituality. As the institution's chaplain, he provides oversight of the ITC Chapel, as well as in-depth pastoral care for individual + collective stakeholders of ITC. His passion for teaching and administrative work continues to lead his research in practical academics.
